

Who qualifies for a Handicap Parking Permit?

Before an individual can qualify for a Handicap Parking Permit, they must have a certified medical condition that limits that their personal mobility resulting in an inability to travel more than two hundred (200) feet without the assistance of a wheel chair, crutch, walker, prosthetic or other device.

Nebraska law provides your medical professional with the specific medical conditions under which an individual will qualify for a handicap parking permit.

These conditions include (Neb.Rev.Stat §60-331.02):

- Visual impairment which limits personal mobility and results in an inability to travel unassisted more than two hundred (200) feet without the use of a wheel chair, crutch, walker, prosthetic, orthotic or other assistant device.
- Physical impairment which limits personal mobility and results in an inability to travel unassisted more than two hundred (200) feet without the use of a wheel chair, crutch, walker, prosthetic, orthotic or other assistant device.
- Respiratory problems which limit personal mobility.
- A cardiac condition to extent that his or her functional limitations are classified in severity as being Class III or Class IV, according to standards set by the American Heart Association.
- Permanent loss of all, or substantially all, the use of one or more limbs.

If your medical condition does not meet one or more of these specific conditions your medical professional cannot provide the medical certification necessary for issuance of a handicap parking permit.
